PREFACE.

THE Index, of which the first portion appears in the present volume, forms part of a scheme to arrange in lexicographical order and print the references to all the Chancery suits for a period of about sixty-five years, which are contained in the several Series or Divisions of Chancery Proceedings, known by the names of one or other of the Six Clerks.

From the end of the reign of Charles I. to the end of that of Queen Anne, that is to say, from about 1649 to 1714 inclusive, the proceedings in Chancery are indexed in thirty-two manuscript volumes, the suits in each volume being roughly arranged under plaintiffs' names. Four of these volumes refer to the Division of Collins, six to that of Mitford, six to that of Reynardson, four to that of Whittington, six to that of Bridges and five to that of Hamilton, the last volume relating to a miscellaneous collection from all six Divisions.

The Indexes to Reynardson's Division have been first taken in hand, for the reason that it contains the smallest number of bundles, namely, 487, but, as the bundles vary much in size—some containing sixty suits only, and others as many as 150—it is not by any means certain that the aggregate number of suits here indexed is smaller than in any of the other Divisions.

The great expenditure of time necessary to go through these thirty-two volumes to find a suit which may be wanted, has no doubt prevented many persons from making extensive searches in this class of documents at the Public Record Office, and it may not be generally known that from these Chancery suits many a pedigree can be worked out in a most complete manner. In one suit alone, the compiler was able to trace the ascent of the litigants for no less than five generations, with many ramifications in each generation, and three or four generations is no uncommon find.

When the remaining Indexes of the Six Clerks' Series are printed, the search will be wonderfully simplified, so that a list of suits that has hitherto taken weeks (or even months) to get out, will be accomplished in as many hours.

To render the Introduction more complete, it only remains to ask information from any one taking an interest in these matters on two points: First, for names of the Six Clerks, or Clerks in Chancery as they were sometimes called, previous to Henry VIII.'s reign; secondly, for reference to any print or drawing of the old house in Chancery Lane, opposite the present Public Record Office, where the Six Clerks' office for many years stood. The Incorporated Law Society now occupies this spot, and as this building was erected in or about 1829, reference to any sketch made previous to this date will be welcomed by the compiler.

The Crace and other collections of views of London, at the British Museum, have been examined, but with no satisfactory result.

In the following Index the Depositions are not included, they will be taken separately at some future time.

INTRODUCTION TO REYNARDSON'S PROCEEDINGS.

THE origin of the officers of the Court of Chancery, called "The Six Clerks," is exceedingly remote. They appear to have been, from the highest antiquity, the sworn officers of the Great Seal, as well as of the Court of Chancery.

They were, with regard to other clerks that came afterwards, the only officers upon the establishment of the Court. They were attendant, if not upon the King, certainly upon the Chancellor, and, with this functionary, resident in the King's Palace.

Burroughes, in his History of the Chancery, says, "The Chancellor and his clerks continued in the King's Palace until about 4 Edward III. (1331), and purveyance was made for them as part of the King's household until that date, when the Chancellor and the Society of Clerks were severed and ordered away from the Court". The exact date of their separation from the King's household would appear to have been 2 Edward III. (1328), for in the Close Roll m. 33d. of this date, we find that after delivery of the Great Seal to the King, by the Bishop of Ely (who was then the Chancellor), and then by the King to the Keeper of the Rolls of Chancery, Master Henry de Clyf, "the King willed and ordered that Master Henry (de Clyff) shall keep an inn for the Clerks of Chancery and for the Officers of the same".

About this time there seems to have been a rearrangement of the officers of the Chancery, some being assigned to the Chancellor, while others to the Keeper of the Rolls and the Clerks in Chancery, together with the clerks of the Petty Bag and the Examiner of Patents, were assigned to the latter. Up to this time it would appear that there were but three Clerks in Chancery, but by an Ordinance or Regulation, made 12 Richard II. (1388), the number was increased to six, from which time (except for a short period during the Commonwealth, hereafter to be mentioned) till the time of their abolition (5 Victoria, 1842), they were always known as the Six Clerks in Chancery.

It is probable that until the above-mentioned division of the Chancery officers between the Chancellor and the Keeper of the Rolls, the appointment of the Clerks was made by the King ; but it is very clear that for several centuries previous to their abolition, the power of appointment was vested in the Keeper or Master of the Rolls, the office being a freehold one, and three guineas being paid as admission fee.

The Six Clerks were required to take an oath of fidelity, which was instituted by an Act of 13 & 14 Edward III. c. 5 (1340), (Bladon, fo. 7, says, 18 Edward III.), which was as follows, and was the same as that taken by the Master of the Rolls.

“ Ye shall swere that well and lawfully ye shall serve our Lord the King and his people in the office of Clerk of the Chancery to wch ye be attitled and ye shall not assent to nor procure the King's Disherition nor perpetual damage to yr power, nor ye shall do nor procure to be done any fraud to any man's wrong nor thing that toucheth the keeping of the Seal. And ye shall lawfully give Counsell in the things that toucheth the King when ye shall be thereunto required And the Counsell wch ye know touching him ye shall conceal And if ye know the King's disherition or ppetuall Damage or fraud to be done upon the things wch touch the Keeping of the Seals Ye shall put yr lawfull power to repress and amend it And if ye cannot doe it then ye shall certifie the Chancellor or other wh may do the same to be amended to your intent.”

The following oath was taken by them in 1614, as appears in the Lansdown MSS., No. 163, fo. 82 :—

30th December, 1614.

“ Yee shall swere that well and trulye yee shall serve the King and his people in the office of one of the Six Clerks of the Chancery whereunto ye be admitted and will justly order yourself in the same according to your lerning and truly counsell them that yee shall be reteyned with And yee shalbe diligent to further the Kinges business from tyme to tyme as neede shall require And yee shall not assent to any fraude or disceipt to be had or donne by you or by your consent in any of the King's Records whereunto yee shall have recourse But well and truly yee shall intreate the same And ye shall not absent yourself willingly whereby the Kings business or any other shalbe undonne or hindered without special license of the Master of the Rolls or his Deputie for the tyme beinge as God you help.”

On his entry to office it was customary for the newly-appointed Clerk to give a dinner and a supper, usually costing £20, but, in 1575, this was considered a matter of great excess and ostentation, and not necessary, and it was commuted for a payment of £6 13s. 6d., with which to purchase new napery and for the renewing of vessels and other necessities of the Six Clerks.

One fact connected with the Six Clerks, previous to Henry VIII.'s reign, was that they were not allowed to marry. It had been a long-established custom that every officer of the Court of Chancery (except the Clerk of the Crown) should be unmarried. If any disregarded this custom they forfeited their office. This custom dates, no doubt, from the time when they were in priest's orders (as their name implies), and when they were subject to all the restraints which the Church of Rome imposed, though participating in the rights and privileges of ecclesiastics. But, by an Act 14 & 15 Henry VIII., cap. 8 (1522-23), they obtained leave to take wives and marry.

The recitals in this Act are most plaintive, and set forth that though many officers of the Court of Chancery had married and yet retained their office, they (the Clerks) required legal sanction to their desires.

The names of the Six Clerks then in office are given in the Act, and were John Trevethan, Richard Wells, Oliver Leader, John Croke, William Jessen and John Lensey, and, no doubt, they soon took advantage of the license given them.

It would seem, also, that in Henry VIII.'s time, the Six Clerks were required to ask leave of the Master of the Rolls when they wished to go out of town. Nor were the emoluments of the office very great, judging from the fact that one of them, Richard Wells, who lived at Ware, used to come to London afoot at the beginning of the Term. But within the next hundred years, when Lord Coventry was Lord Keeper, in 1625, the office had become very valuable, and was sold in one instance for £6,000.

In 1654, Oliver Cromwell abolished the office of Six Clerks and substituted Three Chief Clerks (as before, in Richard III.'s reign), with sixty "Sworn" Clerks under them, and the Appellation of "Sixty Clerks" became general. But, as no compensation was made on the abolition of this freehold office, it was met—as was natural—by a determined resistance on the part of the Commissioners of the Great Seal, and the ordinance was eventually repealed, and, in 1656 or thereabouts, things resumed their former state.

In 31 Henry VIII. (1539), the Six Clerks were incorporated as a body politic. Their rank as officers of the Court of Chancery was declared to be next in order to the Clerks of the Privy Council, as appears by a certificate, dated 20th February, 1633, under Seal of the Heralds College, signed by Sir John Burroughs, Knight, Garter King of Arms.

In ancient times the Six Bachelors, as they then were, had all the business to themselves, but soon needed help, and engaged "Under Clerks". By degrees, these Under Clerks usurped the effective management of the business, and became the recognised officers of the Court, though they had no established scale of fees, being paid by the Six Clerks. In 1668, they were constituted "Sworn Clerks" with fixed fees, and provision was made that on a vacancy in the Six Clerks, persons who had served for at least seven years as "Sworn Clerks," were eligible for the post. The number of "Sworn Clerks" varied at different periods, but, eventually, in 1668, they were limited to ten to each Six Clerk by whom they were nominated, but power was reserved to the Master of the Rolls to admit them on his own initiative, if he so desired. The Sworn Clerks (or Clerks in Court, as they came to be called), as their name implies, had to take an oath similar to that of the Six Clerks, which, however, was rather more comprehensive in its terms.

Besides the Sworn Clerks there were others called "Waiting Clerks," limited to two for each Six Clerk, but it is not quite certain what precise position they held, but probably they were supernumeraries waiting for a vacancy among the Sworn Clerks.

Besides all these there was the office of "Riding Clerk," who looked after the King's interests in patents, writs and commissions, keeping an account of the grants which passed the Great Seal and attending His Majesty in Council with Sheriffs Rolls, etc.

The Riding Clerk was one of the Six Clerks who took the above-named duties in rotation for a year, and received extra fees in consequence.

As may be surmised, where a lucrative business (such as that of the Six Clerks and their attendants) was a monopoly, abuses crept in, and much inconvenience was caused to the suitors and the public, and justice thereby delayed. The Six Clerks neglected to give certificates to set down causes, records were lost, mislaid, or stolen, and it would even appear that clerks were committed to the Fleet for criminally disposing of records or tampering with depositions and counterfeiting writs of subpœna. This condition of things was, however, eventually dealt with by an order, dated 18th July, 1666, and some of the most glaring abuses put down.

But there were also internal dissensions between the Sworn Clerks and their superiors the Six Clerks, and, in 1658, things came to a crisis, for in that year the latter took away the seats, desks, books and papers that were in the Public Office, and posted up a declaration forbidding the Sworn Clerks to appear in Court.

These disputes, or most of them were, however, patched up for a time, but, in 1668, a further outbreak occurred, for it seems the Sworn Clerks behaved in a most indecent manner, and threw dirt, filth and ink about the Court, abused their masters—the Six Clerks—and made loud outcries and noises with the flaps of their desks, thus preventing the transaction of any business. The complaint of the Sworn Clerks was to the effect that the Six Clerks had permitted unauthorised persons to practise without being sworn, had turned off the regular clerks, and had employed persons to copy the documents, etc., at low rates, who were neither articled, educated nor employed in the office.

This alarming state of affairs continued off and on for several years, but was finally ended by an inquiry and an order, in 1693, which regulated the duties of the Sworn Clerks. Thus, peace was restored, and from that time to the date of the abolition of the Six Clerks, in 1842, there were no more outbreaks.

It will now be interesting to inquire into what were the duties of the Six Clerks. In the times of Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth, they were spoken of as being the only Attorneys of the Court of Chancery. They acted, in fact, as the official medium between solicitors and the Court.

They received and filed all Bills, Answers, Replications and other Records in all cases on the Equity side of the Court of Chancery, and entered memorandums of them in books, from which they certified to the Court, when required, the state of proceedings in causes. They signed all copies of pleadings made by the Sworn Clerks and Waiting Clerks, after seeing that the originals were regularly filed. After each term they presented to be set down the causes ready for hearing in the ensuing term.

They likewise attended in term time to read such documents as were ordered to be read in causes. They examined and signed dockets of decrees and dismissions prepared for enrolment, and saw that the records and orders were fully filed and entered, which they certified previous to signature by the Lord Chancellor or Vice-Chancellor, or the Master of the Rolls.

As to the systems adopted at various times to file and keep in order the vast accumulation of Bills, Answers and Depositions under the charge of the Six Clerks, there are recorded at least two. About 1635, the business of the office was divided thus : suits in which the first Plaintiffs' name began with letters A, B, F and Y, were apportioned to two of the Six Clerks ; letters E, G to O, to two others ; and letters P to X and Z to the remaining two ; but eventually the sworn clerk attached to any particular Six Clerk filed the Bills, etc., in all their suits with his Six Clerk, apparently without reference to the alphabetical order above mentioned.

It will be interesting to place on record the instructions for filing Bills, etc., adopted later on, drawn up by one of the Six Clerks themselves. They are to be found in Vol. II. of the Index to Proceedings in Chancery, 1714-1758, Reynardson's Division, and though in the quaint language and spelling of the time, are so clear and detailed that no further remarks are necessary.

THE METHOD OF FILING AND KEEPING BILLS, ANSWERS AND DEPCONS, DRAWN UP BY MR. REYNARDSON.

When a Bill is brought into the Office the fitte Sollr. carry's it to any one of the sworne Clerks or waiting Clerks or waiting Clerks (sic) he thinks proper; who is then called the plts Clerk in Court, and such sworne or waiting Clerk ought imediately to put the day of the month and year upon the bill, and carry it into his Six Clerks study, who enters the Name of the plts and Defts in a book (Called the law book) kept by him in an alphabeticall manner; and then the Six Clerk writes his Sir Name upon the top of the Bill and puts it in a file in his study and from this time such Six Clerk is and continues the Six Clerk for the Plte in such cause, notwithstanding any change of the sworne Clerk or Sollicitors, and if any abatemt of suit happens by death of Plte or Deft or otherwise and a bill of revr. of the former suit is brought, it ought to be filed with the first Six Clerk in manner before mentioned, that the records in the same cause may be together, and that one Six Clerk may be enabled from time to time to certify to the Court the state of the proceedings in each cause. When the Defts Sollrs come to enter an appearance they retain such one or more of the sworn Clerks as each Deft thinks proper. The sworne Clerk writes the name renoted of the cause, his own Six Clerks name (or any other of the Six Clerks names he thinks proper if his own Six Clerk happens to be for the Plte) and his own name, this note he delivers to the Six Clerk for the Plte and takes the Bill from the file and gives a rect for it in a book kept for ye purpose, and the Six Clerk from the note enters the name of the Deft's Six Clerk and sworne Clerk in his Cause book over against the entry by him before made of the Plts and Defts names, and this discharges the Plts Six Clerk of such Bill.

The Bill then remains possion of the Defts Clerk in Court untill an answer is put in thereto, when the bill and answer are affixed together and ought immediately to be carried into that Six Clerk's Study in whose name the Deft appeared, and such Six Clerk enters the name of the plts and such of the Defts as are mentioned in the answer, together with the day of the month and year in his Cause book, signs his name to each skin of the answer and then delivers bill and answer together to the Plts Six Clerk, who, if the answer is properly taken and signed immediately, enters the name of the Deft who answers and the day of the month and year in the same part of the Cause book where [he] had before written the parties names from the Bill.

The Answer being thus entered is said to be filed, and during the Terme it came in the bill and answer together lye open upon a table in the plts Six Clerk's Study, from whence the Plts Clerk in Court takes the same to copy the answer, but first gives the Six Clerk a rect for the same and when the answer is copied it ought to be returned into this Study of the Six Clerks for the Plte, and amongst the records of the Terme in which the answer was filed.

At the end of every Terme the records of yt Terme are bundled up by each Clerk's record Keeper and a lable of the Terme affixed thereto. The single Bills to which no appearance is entered by themselves, and Bills and Answers in another bundle, and were the records returned to the Six Clerks according to the orders of Court when copied by the Sworne Clerks and put into the bundle of records of the Terme when filed, the Six Clerks books would be an exact Index or Calendar to the Records, and any Record would be found with ease.

When the Defts have answered, if the Plte wod repleye thereto, his Clerk in Court carrys a replication (to all or either of the Defts answers) to the Six Clerk for the Plts, who enters the names of Defts replied to in his Cause book where the first entry made, and puts the Day of the month and year on the replication and in his book, then signs the replication and carrys it to the Deft Six Clerk who makes the like entry and puts the replication upon a file in his study where the same remains. From these entrys the Six Clerks are enabled (when required) to certify to the Court the state of Proceedings in every Cause so far as relate to the time of filing bill, answeres or replication.

When Witnesses are examined by Comicon in the Country, such Comicon when returned into Court, ought by the orders of the Court to be delivered to the Six Clerk of the party who sued out such Comicon or his Deputy, to be safely and secretly kept and unopened till pubcon is duely passt, when the same ought to be opened in the presence of such Six Clerk or his Deputy, and delivered to the Clerk in Court to be copyed, and all records when copyed ought immediately to be re^d [returned] to the Six Clerk from whom the same was rec'd, and all copys of records when made should be brought to the Six Clerk to be signed before the same are delivered out to any Client.

This is the method prescribed by the Orders of Court for the due filing, Keeping and copying of records and which the Six Clerks observe to the utmost of their power, but are not so well observed on the part of the Sworne and Waiting Clerks, by which it is apprehended many inconveniences arise, not only to the Suitors but to the Officers of the Court.

First as to Single Bills. These are taken out by the Clerk in Court who first appears for any or either of the Defts, who makes a copy of it but never returns it to the Six Clerk, but instead thereof delivers it over to any other sworne or waiting Clerk who appears for any other Deft, by which means such other Clerk copys, and if no answer happens to be filed by such last Sworn or Waiting Clerks, his Six Clerk never comes to the knowledge of the Copyes made by him, by which means the Six Clerk is deprived of his fees for such copy, and the Bill remains in the Custody of a Clerk whose name does not appear in the Six Clerks books so as to charge him with the record of the Bill, but the same when wanted is [? has] to be traced from one Sworn or waiting Clerk to another, Whereas if the record of the Bill was to be returned by the Sworn Clerk who first took [it] to the Six Clerk from whom the same was rec'd, and the like method observed by every Clerk who appears for any Deft, as is by the Sworne or Waiting Clerk who first takes the Bill to copy, the Bill, in case of no answer filed, would remain in the Terme Bundle in which it was filed and the Six Clerk would be enabled to know how many copies of such bill was made.

2ndly as to answers. They are frequently copied before they are filed and by that means often not filed at all, for by copying the answers before filed, the Six Clerk, who (in case the answer was filed) would have been entitled to a copy, has not an opportunity of charging the Plts Clerk in Court with such copy, and in case the Cause is not like to be proceeded in such answers often remain unfiled.

Such answers as are regularly filed the Plts Clerk in Court takes from the Pts Six Clerk and puts into the same Term bundle from whence taken; but this method not being observed it occasions great confusion amongst the records; for it frequently happens yt answers when copied by the Pts Clerk in Court are not returned to the Six Clerk in many years, and by this means such answers are never put into the proper term Bundles, But in case of the death of such Clerk in Court his records are delivered to his Six Clerk, but not in the order or method observed by the Six Clerks in keeping their records, so that the Six Clerks can only take an alphabetical list of such records and this occasions the records in the Six Clerks record rooms to be under two different heads, one entituled Study Matters and the other Pleadings.

The first Class [i.e., Study Matters] are such records as are by the Six Clerks respectively sent out of their offices or Studys into the record rooms, and which is for the most part so contrived as to have always the records of 5 Terms in their Studys, so that were the records that are copied by [them] returned before the end of 5 terms the inconveniences wch arise from their not being returned to the Six Clerks would be avoided, and should any one have occasion to search for a record in any Cause at any distance of time, if the Ptf's name and the terme when the Cause began was but known, the Plts Six Clerks book would immediately show in what Term bundle any particular bill, answer or other record was remaining.

But as great number of records are never, or at least not in many years, returned to the Six Clerks, if any occasion to resort to any such records the first step to be taken is to search the Cause book of the Six Clerk [who] was concerned for the Plte, where is to be found what answers have been filed and the perticular (sic) term when filed, then searches to be made into that Term bundle for the Perticular record wanted, (and which if regularly returned would be there to be found), but not being to be found there, search must be again made in the Six Clerks books of Delivery of Records to see what Clerk in Court took such answer to copy ; if the same person who took out such answer be then in the office the answer may be found without any great difficulty, but if it happen to be a record of long standing that is wanted it may happe yt the Plte has severall times changed his Clerk in Court or his (sic) the seat of such Clerk may have several times changed its owner, and in such case a record is to be found with great difficulty, if at all.

This is the case when a record [is taken] out by a clerk in the division of the Pts Six Clerk, but as Plts often change their Clerk in Court, it frequently happens that a record is taken from the Six Clerk by a clerk who comes in to the Cause for the Plte who is neither in the Division of the Plts or Defts Six Clerk; this occasions a greater inconvenience still, for in case of the death of such last mentioned Clerk in Court his records are, or ought to be possessed by his Six Clerk, and never come back to the Six Clerk who was concerned in the Cause, in which case y^e are scarce ever to be found.

3rdly Comicons to examine with Interrys and Depositions taken thereon never come to the hands of the Six Clerk, either before or after publication, notwithstanding the several orders for yt purpose, unless in the case of a death of a Clerk in Court. And what is most extraordinary altho Depositions seem to be of the greatest consequence they do not so much as appear in any of the Six Clerks books, nor are the records thereof ever signed with Six Clerks name as other records are, and unless the Cause wherein such depositions are taken is set down to be heard, the Six Clerks have no knowledge of the Copys (sic) thereof and are deprived of their fees for the same. And there are great numbers of Depositions in Causes which never come to be heard, Depons and Examinations in Causes after hearing, which not being brought to the Six Clerk according to the orders of the Court the Six Clerks are deprived of their fees for the Copys thereof.

It will be seen from the foregoing method of filing Bills, etc., that the suits frequently got terribly mixed up, and it is impossible now to follow the course of any particular suit in its tedious travel through Chancery by a mere inspection of the Index, and it is necessary, should a Bill or Answer not be found in the Division of the Six Clerk with whom it was first filed, to continue the search from Division to Division of the remaining Clerks. It must also be remembered that the title of the suit was often varied according to the particular Defendant making answer.

All this, however, will be wonderfully simplified when the other Six Clerks' Indexes are printed.

In addition to the duties as Clerks in Chancery they had others in connection with their office as Comptrollers of the Hanaper, namely, to receive certain revenues of the Crown, made payable to the Clerk of the Hanaper, and to pay thereout certain annuities, salaries and allowances.

They also enrolled the Warrants for grants which passed the Great Seal, and wrote and engrossed Letters Patent nominating the Sheriffs for England and Wales, appointed yearly by the Privy Council, with the writs incident thereto, and they had the custody of the Sheriffs' Rolls.

They were also the nominal attorneys in all causes depending in the Petty Bag Office, and it was their duty to enter in a book all rules in Causes given by the Clerks of the Petty Bag.

It is not altogether to be wondered at that, with such an accumulation of duties, justice was tardy and suitors became impatient, aggravated as it was by somewhat extortionate fees, and at length it became necessary to devise more expeditious, and less costly, methods. Accordingly, in order gradually to dissolve the office, it was decreed by Act 3 & 4 William IV. (1833), that future vacancies in the office of Six Clerks should not be filled up until the number should have been reduced to two, and finally by Act 5 & 6 Victoria (1842), their duties were divided and taken over by the Clerks of Records and Writs, the Clerk of Enrollments and the Clerk of the Petty Bag, under whose care the business continued till 1889, when the Petty Bag office was abolished and other arrangements were made for carrying on the business of the Court of Chancery.

We will now describe the places where the Six Clerks in Chancery carried on their business. As already stated, they were originally attendant on the King or his Chancellor, and were resident in the King's Palace (and probably accompanied him on any of his travels about the Kingdom).

In 2 Edward III. (1328), as we have seen, an Inn was assigned to them. The Close Roll does not particularly specify where this Inn was, but it may be presumed to be the same that they were occupying at the time of their Incorporation, in 31 Henry VIII. (1539), namely, Harflu's Inn in Chancery Lane.

This Inn, in 32 Henry VI. (1453), was the property of Nicholas Wymbyssh, clerk, who was at that time a Master in Chancery, and on 8th February of that year he had license to grant to the Prior and Convent of Nocton Park, in the County of Lincoln, "one messuage with the appurtenances in a Street called Chauncery Lane, in the Parish of St. Dunstan, Fletstrete, in the suburb of London, which is held of us (the King) in free burbage and which is extended to forty and six shillings and eight pence by the year" in augmentation of their sustenance (Patent Roll, No. 478, 32 Henry VI. m. 13).

This messuage and its appurtenances, by an Inquis. ad quod dam., taken on Friday next before the Feast of the Blessed Virgin Mary of the same year, was found not to be to the damage or prejudice of the King for Nicholas Wymbyssh to give and assign to the Prior and Convent of Nocton Park. (Inquis. ad quod dam., 32 Henry VI., No. 31.)

We next hear of Harflu's Inn in Henry VIII.'s reign, when the lesser monasteries began to be suppressed, for amongst the many estates granted to Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolk, and Katharine his wife, were Nocton Park, together with a messuage and tenements in Chauncery Lane. (Patent Roll, No. 684, 30 Henry VIII., seventh part, m. 17 and 21.)

By an Act of Parliament, dated 28th April, 31 Henry VIII. (1539), (Certiorari Bundle No. I., No. 7), the Six Clerks were incorporated and enabled to hold property in their own right, and "the messuage in Chauncery Lane of old time, named Harflu Inne, now being in the holding or occupation of the Six Clerks of the Kings High Court of Chancery," and which the said Duke and Duchess "were content to depart with to the Six Clerks," was handed over to the newly-created corporate body of the Six Clerks.

The situation of Harflu's Inne can fairly well be determined from several sources. Ogilby and Morgan's map of London, 1677, shows the Six Clerks office exactly opposite the Rolls Chapel, and "over against the Rolls" is a usual expression in speaking of it. Stowe's Survey of London, Vol. III., p. 263, and Maitland's History of London, (1775), p. 977, both concur in saying that:—

"On the West side of Chancery Lane was some time a House belonging to the Prior of Nocton Park, a House of Canons in Lincolnshire. This was commonly called Hereflete Inn and was a brew house, but now built for the Six Clerks of the Chancery, and stands over against the house called the Rolls and near unto the lane which entered Fickets cross or Fickets field" (now Carey Street).

It would appear probable, therefore, that the Law Institute now occupies the site of the building which was for many centuries the Six Clerks office.

In this building they remained till 1621, when, a fire occurring, it was entirely destroyed with many of the records stored there.

A more substantial one was built entirely of brick on the same site, with separate rooms and lodgings for each of the Six Clerks, besides several rooms therein vaulted over with brick for the safe keeping of the records. The cost of this building was £6,000, and provision was made for recouping the outlay by levying a tax of £300 on every future incoming Six Clerk until the amount was cleared off.

In course of time this building became too small for the increasing business in Chancery, and unfitted for the safe custody of the Records. Hence Parliamentary powers were obtained, 1774 (14 George III.), authorising its sale or rebuilding, and providing funds for the purpose.

Upwards of £5,000 was then set aside for the purchase of a site and for the erection of offices, and by an Act of the following year, land in Chancery Lane on the west side, nearer to Holborn, and till then forming a portion of the gardens of Lincoln's Inn, was selected as preferable.

The building "over against the Rolls" and the ground was disposed of, and the purchase money paid into the Bank, the annual income whereof being paid to the Six Clerks in compensation for the loss of their residential chambers and for the repair of the building they occupied till 1842.

This building, it may be remarked, was most substantially built, and the arches of its Record room were strong enough to bear almost any superincumbent weight, and the whole material was of the best quality. In fitting up the present Royal Courts of Justice, much of the oak wood-work of this building was used for desks, seats, etc.

The Six Clerks took possession of the new building in Trinity Vacation, 1778, and there they continued till the abolition of their office in 1842, when, as before stated, their duties were transferred to the Clerks of Records and Writs, whose name might, till quite recently (1898), have been still discovered (but nearly obliterated by dirt and dust) over the doorway. On the erection of the Royal Courts of Justice in the Strand, their business was transferred there.

The upper part of this building is now used as a School of Arms for the Inns of Court Royal Volunteers, and the lower part as a lumber room.

Little more remains to be said about the Six Clerks beyond giving their names and dates of appointment. (See end of Introduction.)

As at present arranged, the Six Clerks documents are known to searchers under the names of Brydges, Collins, Hamilton, Mitford, Reynardson and Whittington. As will be seen by the list, these Six were in office together between the years 1738 and 1747, and probably at some period between these years the documents were sorted and Indexes made.

We have, however, the information from the Six Clerks themselves (First Report on Public Records, 1800, p. 106), that:—

"On the removal of the office to the Holborn end of Chancery Lane, in 1778, the records were re-sorted with much labour and pains and put into complete order according to years, and new Calendars made thereof in which order they have been well preserved ever since."

Again, in the Second Report of the Deputy-Keeper, 1840, p. 74, the Assistant-Keeper at the Tower (where the Records of the Six Clerks and other documents were preserved till the erection of the present Public Record Office) reports that "These documents are divided into six divisions bearing the names of the Six Clerks in Chancery at the time they were sorted".

Within recent years two (Mitford and Reynardson) of the six sets of records have been checked, and each suit separately numbered so that very little time is lost in searching for any particular document.

It is difficult to ascertain precisely the total number of suits in these Indexes (which it must be remembered embrace only the period 1649-1714), but Bridges contains—640 Bundles

Collins	610	„
Hamilton	671	„
Mitford	658	„
Reynardson	487	„
Whittington	546	„

Total	3612

and reckoning on an average of seventy suits in a bundle, we get a total of over 250,000 suits which is probably not far from the mark.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S SUITS.

These Suits were instituted by the Attorney-General on behalf of individuals, or more generally on behalf of local charities, towns or parishes. In the original Calendars they appear as "Att.-Gen.," as "plaintiff, versus —," as "defendant," but in each case they have been examined to see in whose behalf they were instituted and the full names inserted.

Preface.

No little confusion has in the past been caused by the use of an incorrect term to the class of documents here printed, for although it was usual to direct the writs to the County Escheator, it is none the less misleading to describe these Inquisitions as "Escheats," since that name has been reserved for the Escheator's accounts of lands and property escheated to the Crown, with the profits and value of the same at different periods.

Inquisitiones post mortem were not concerned with property held otherwise than "in chief" by tenants in capite, whose death necessitated such inquiry in order to ascertain the feudal rights which accrued to the Crown—a practice which continued until the abolition of the service of knight serjeantry in 1645, although it was not formally abolished until the accession of Charles the Second in 1660. It is unnecessary to enter into the details of feudal exactions levied by the Crown in former days, but an interesting "incident" of the service may be referred to. When the heir-at-law was a minor he became a ward of the Crown, and this was turned into a source of considerable profit, inasmuch as it first included the right not only to receive the rents and profits of the property during the ward's minority, but also to find a wife for the youthful heir. Nor did the privilege end there, for on attaining his majority the heir became the subject of further feudal exactions, being obliged, on suing out his ousterlemain (i.e., delivery to him by the Crown of the lands for which he was in ward) to make certain payments, and to bring forward strict proof that he had attained his full age of twenty-one years. Some few of the Inquisitions, known as "proofs of age" will be found in this volume, and they are very interesting documents on account of the evidence brought forward by witnesses to show how they knew that the heir had attained his majority. Amongst the Inquisitiones post mortem are also some taken virtute officii, others ad quod damnum, besides those dealing with the property of felons. Instances of Inquisitions relating to lunatics and idiots do not, however, occur in these pages.

The proceedings which followed upon the death of a tenant in chief were commenced by the issuing of a writ, styled the writ of diem clausit extremum, a mediæval synonym for obit, directed from the Court of Chancery to the escheator or feodary of the county in which the deceased was presumed to have possessed lands. It commanded him to summon a jury for the purpose of conducting an inquiry into the following matters:—

1. Of what lands did the deceased die possessed?
2. Of whom, and by what rents or services, were the same held?
3. What was the date of his death?
4. His next heir-at-law, and of what age?
5. Whether an alien, or attainted of treason?

The escheator or feodary, following the directions contained in the writ, then summoned a jury, who in accordance with the revealed evidence gave their verdict upon oath; and after the return had been engrossed upon parchment, it was in due course delivered into the Court of Chancery and there filed. Owing to the nature of the inquest it was frequently necessary to inquire into family settlements and trusts; consequently when deeds and wills are introduced they are recited very fully, thus affording valuable information to the genealogist.

Into the Exchequer the Chancery officials subsequently forwarded a copy of the Inquisition so that the officers there might collect the feudal dues. If it was discovered that the jury had made an inaccurate return, a further writ, known as the writ ad melius inquirendum, was directed to the escheator or his substitute, requiring him to hold a second inquest to ascertain omitted facts, and cases even are known in which this process had to be repeated a third or fourth time. But in the reign of Henry VIII, on account of alleged extortions by Crown officials, and the practice more especially of compelling landowners who were not tenants in capite to sue out their ousterlemains, a new Court, known as that of Wards and Liveries, was created for the purpose of attending to matters connected with these Inquisitions—to which Court also were transcripts of the Inquisitiones post mortem sent. Until the thirty-fifth of Henry VIII, therefore, two sets of Inquisitions exist, the original returns being known as the “Chancery Series,” and the transcripts as “Exchequer Series”; and subsequent to that date may be added a third, the “Wards and Liveries Series.”

It is not to be denied that many of our English counties are fortunately circumstanced with respect to the publication of their important records. That Gloucestershire is one of these, a glance at the new list of publications of the British Record Society will show. All the Inquisitiones post mortem for the reign of Charles I have been printed,* and now it is the turn of the earliest series of all, commencing with the twentieth year of Henry III [1236]. Had the expedient been adopted of giving mere selections the work would have surely failed, but a course far wiser than this has been followed throughout: abstracts have ever been full, and periods complete: so that its success has been most marked. How complete the records are may be judged from the fact that Inquisitions for Gloucestershire to the number of four-score are printed for the reign of Henry III alone; and as regards the thoroughness of the work, this will be readily admitted from a perusal of the examples given in these pages.

The present volume, the fourth of a series, consists of such Plantagenet Inquisitions as relate to the City and County of Gloucester. They are the earliest examples now existing, and illustrate clearly the importance of these Records to the genealogist, the historian, and topographer. Commencing with the Inquisition of William Avenel, the writ for which was issued at Westminster on May 5th, 1236, this volume contains complete abstracts for the last thirty-six years of the reign of Henry III and for the greater part of the reign of his successor "the English Justinian," the total number of Inquisitions being as under:—

The period included in the present instalment of Inquisitiones post mortem for the Plantagenet period is thus seen to cover the years

* In Vols. ix. xiii. and xxi.

1236 to 1300, and it may be mentioned that arrangements have been completed whereby a considerable portion of the Inquisitions for the reigns of Edward II and Edward III will appear in the "Index Library" during 1904 and 1905, and the usual thorough Indexes Nominum et Locorum will be published as soon as the last Inquisitions of this period issue from the press. This is believed to be the better course to follow, since it has the advantage not only of hastening forward the completion of work now well in hand—thus preventing the annoyance of a prolonged pause (due both to preparation and to publication of the periodic Index)—but also of avoiding an undue multiplicity of indexes.

The abstracts of Inquisitiones post mortem here printed are taken from the Chancery Series for the reigns of Henry III and Edward I, preserved at the Public Record Office; and since the original documents are in Latin, and their decipherment, on account of age and condition, at-times a source of perplexity, even to the practised eye of the expert, the great advantage of these readable English abstracts will be readily allowed no less by the critic than the student. For they supply in each case the whole of the information contained in the originals, and for all practical purposes may therefore be considered as the Inquisitions themselves, shorn of their provoking verbiage. They have the advantage, moreover, of having been collated, whenever necessary, with the transcripts returned either into the Court of Exchequer or the Court of Wards and Liveries. For this much praise is due to Miss Walford, upon the accuracy of whose work every reliance may be placed.

Philip Wyyer.

Writ dated at Rading 29th July, 35 Hen. III [1251].

Inquisition taken at St. Briavells by Sir J. son of Geoffrey, Justice of Ireland, on Thursday next after the feast of St. Peter ad Vincula, 35 Hen. III [1251], to ascertain in what manner Philip Wyyer held his land and mills in Newelande and in the vill of St. Briavell, who enfeoffed him, &c., by the oath of Henry Haket, William le bret, Philip baudron, John de Malemord, Roger Wyyer, John son of Peter, Richard Hurel, John son of Richard, Walter Wyyer, John Godwy, Gilbert Noee, and Nigel Abraham, who say that

Philip Wyyer holds 1 carucate of land of the hilly and poor land in Newelande, of the gift of Hugh his father, for which the said Hugh was wont to pay to the King yearly the rent of 8s., and by doing suit at the court of St. Briavell. The said Hugh enfeoffed the said Philip of the said land, and he holds it by the said rent and service.

John Tenterer and Roger Loreman sold to Philip Wyver the site of a mill in Newelande, for which site the said John and Roger made a fine with R. Passelewe, and afterwards the said Philip built the mill and paid for the same half a mark yearly.

The said John and Roger enfeoffed the said Philip of the said site. The said mill is worth per annum 20s., whereof the said Philip paid to the King yearly half a mark.

The said Philip bought of Philip Martin certain land wherein was found a place to build the mill, and because the land of the King, being hilly, waste and uncultivated, was thereto contiguous, the said Philip held a communication with Sir P. Schaceport, keeper of the Castle of St. Briavell and of the forest of Dene, and with his bailiffs, in order that he might take 4 perches of land in length and 1 in breadth of the said waste land to make a pool for the mill, and a new rent to be paid to the King therefor; and because the said Sir P. Chaceport and his bailiffs by inquisition made in full court as to the value of the said perches found that by giving them up they would improve the manor of St. Briavell by the increased yearly rent of half a mark, they granted the same to him for half a mark per annum.

The said mill is worth yearly 20s., whereof the said Philip paid to the King yearly half a mark, where formerly he was wont to take nothing.

The said Geoffrey Erkembaud and his predecessors never did homage or relief to the King for the tenements the said Geoffrey holds in Cyrencester by the serjeanty of keeping 2 or 3 greyhounds at the will of the King; and because they never kept them the King impleaded Richard Erkembaud, father of the said Geoffrey, who died while the said plea was pending.

The Lord of Waddum in the time of Robert de Pundelarg', and all the free tenants of the said vill, and 4 customary tenants, with the reeve and all the customary tenants at the will of the sheriff, were wont to do suit yearly at each hundred and to pay 1 mark of the view of frankpledge of the said vill and to do suit at the county, and the sheriff ought to plead all the plea touching his office: all which things are now withdrawn.

And when John le Flemming was sheriff of Gloucester he took 1 mark of the view of frankpledge of the township of Waddun, which was withdrawn in the time of R. de Cromhale.

Walter Wyther.

Inquisition made at Gloucester on Sunday next before the feast of the Apostles Simon and Jude, 54 Hen. III [1269], before Roger de Clifford, junior, justice of the forest on this side the Trent, as to how much land Walter Wyther, lately deceased, held of the King in chief in his bailiwick, and how much of others, and by what service, &c., by the oath of Philip de Hatherle, Robert de Ledene, John de Auste, Thomas Warin, William Joce, Walter de Blakeneye, Philip Baderun, William Bret, junior, Philip Bissohp, Ely de Heydon, Hur' de Dene, and John Malemort, who say that

The said Walter held of the King in chief 1 messuage, 6s. of yearly rent, and 12 acres of land in the vill of St. Bravello, by the service of finding one servant on foot in the said forest for the custody thereof; also 12 acres of land in Caldewelle, paying therefor yearly to the castle of St. Bravello 4s.; the said acres are worth per annum 12s.; and the said messuage with the said 12 acres of land in St. Bravello is worth per annum, clear, 12s.; also 12 acres of land in Huwaldrefeld of the Abbot of Tinterne by the service of 1d. by the year—they are worth per annum, clear, 12s.; also at Lydeneye 1 messuage, $\frac{1}{2}$ a virgate of land, and $\frac{1}{2}$ a mark of yearly rent; the said messuage and land are worth per annum 6s.; and he held those tenements in Lydeneye of the Prior of Lyra, paying therefor by the year 12d.

The said Walter died on Tuesday, viz., on the morrow of St. Michael last past; and on the Sunday next preceding there came to him William Buter, who married the second (postnatam) daughter and one of the heirs of the said Walter, and took from him the enfeoffment of the bailiwick of the said serjeanty; and on the morrow, to wit on the feast of St. Michael, he went into the said forest as a serjeant, taking seisin of the said serjeanty by going into the forest in that way; but after that the said Walter had made the said feoffment he did not rise from his bed of the sickness whereof he died, nor long before. They say also that on the said Sunday the said Walter, lying on his bed of sickness in that state, made a certain feoffment to William, second (postnato) son of the said William Buter, of his said lands and tenements in Lydeneye and Caldewell. And the jurors being asked what seisin the said William had of the said lands and tenements before the death of the said Walter say that he had no seisin of the lands of Caldewall before the death of the said Walter; but after his death the friends of the said William, who is a boy and under age, put themselves into seisin of the said lands in the name of the said boy, and still use the same seisin. Walter, Constable of England, who made the said Castle of Gloucester, gave to the Prior of Lanthony and to the Convent the said meadow under the said castle which is called Presteneham, and then and before, from time immemorial, the burgesses of Gloucester had common in the said meadows of Presteneham and Suthmede immediately after the hay was carried, so that if any beasts were found depasturing or doing damage there it was lawful for the keepers of the said meadows to impark those beasts, and to take reasonable amends for the damage done to the hay. And the said burgesses always enjoyed that common peaceably successively from year to year until the coming of Sir Roger de Clifford, who kept the said castle on behalf of the King at the end of the war and impeded the said burgesses for some time, so that they could not have common as they were wont to have; but directly after peace was made they had their common from year to year as before, as well in the time of Adam de Greymull and Reginald de Acle as of Matthew Besylle, constable of the said castle after the time of the said Roger, and so they continued their seisin until the said Peter de Chaumont unjustly kept them out of the said common this year last past.

Proof of age of Fulk (Fulconis) son of Warin.

Witnesses called to prove the lawful age of Fulk son of Warin, before the Council of the King at Westminster on Thursday next after the feast of St. Mark the Evangelist, 1 Edw. I [1273.]

Nicholas de Hanrede,* being sworn, says that he knows for certain that Fulk son of Warin, who now prays (seeks) for his inheritance, will be 22 years old on the day of the Exaltation of Holy Cross next coming, because in the 34th year of the reign of King Henry III he was sheriff of Berks, and on the Wednesday next after the said feast he was at Wanetinge in the house of Fulk, father of the said Fulk, where the report came to him that his wife had borne him a son, and the said Fulk must be that son because he knows of no other.

*Geoffrey de Wauncy is certain that the said Fulk will be 22 years old on the said feast, and this he knows by the common report of the country and by knights and other trustworthy people, and it was also told him by Geoffrey de Wauncy, his father, who, in the feast of St. Michael next after the said feast upon which the said Fulk was born, took a farm at Wanetinge for the term of 22 years, which said term will expire on the feast of St. Michael next coming.

*Robert de Whytefeud says that he believes the said Fulk to be about 22 years old because, 22 years ago, he was in the house of Ralph le Botiller at Wemmes, where a great number of knights and dames were invited, and it was then said that the mother of the said Fulk was not there because she was pregnant, but he does not know whether it was this child or another.

Peter de Grave says he knows the age of the said Fulk because there was a disagreement between himself and Fulk, father of the said Fulk, which was settled at Wanetinge, and then came the report there of the birth of the said Fulk. He adds that his father and other friends were much congratulated because he had a son, and that all his other children were girls.

* Knight written in the margin opposite each paragraph.

Peter de Offinton knows the age of the said Fulk by the death of his mother, who died then, and he then at Wanetinge asked for those things which were necessary for his mother's funeral, and then there came the report that a son had been born to Fulk, father of said Fulk, at Whytinton, who ought to be his heir.

William le Clothmongere says he knows the age of said Fulk because he was married on the feast of the Translation of St. Thomas the Martyr 20 years ago, at which time the said Fulk was 2 years ago except the term between the said feasts.

Walter le Waleys says that he took his land of Henneye about the quindene of Easter 22 years ago, and the said Fulk was born at Whytinton on the feast of the Exaltation of Holy Cross last preceding. Witness was at the fairs at Waneting on the feast of St. Faith next after the said feast when Simon le Clerk told him of the birth of the said Fulk.

Richard de Pavelly says that he came back from the Holy Land 8 days before the feast of the Nativity of the Blessed Mary, now 22 years ago, when a year before Louis, King of the French, was taken by the enemies of the Cross of Christ at Damietta in the Holy Land; and after his coming into England, in the feast of the Exaltation of Holy Cross, viz., within a quindene after his arrival, he was at Wanetinge, where he heard of the birth of [the] said Fulk. Emma his mother died on the feast of St. Andrew next following the said feast.

John de Budyford says that Margery his mother died on the feast of the Translation of St. Thomas the Martyr 22 years ago. On the feast of the Exaltation of Holy Cross next following he was at Bristol, where he heard the report of the birth of the said Fulk at Whytinton. At that time he lived at Bristol, and Jordan de Budeford his father had the manor of Hauekesbir' next to the manor of the said Fulk's father of Aleweston, and the said Jordan was the counsellor (consiliarius) of the father of said Fulk.

Bartholomew de Erleye says that Giles de Erleye his father died in the feast of Easter 21 years ago, and on the said feast of the Exaltation of Holy Cross last preceding he was with his said father at Erleye, where they heard of the birth of the said Fulk.

Henry de Gopshull says that Sarra de Grave his grandmother died on the feast of St. Faith now 22 years ago, and he took the inheritance of the said Sarra. On the Wednesday next before the said feast of the Exaltation of Holy Cross he was at Wanetinge, when news of the birth of the said Fulk was brought to him by William Pymor, messenger of the father of the said Fulk.

Walter, son of Henry le Clerc, of Waneting, says that the right heir of Fulk son of Warin is dead. Witness adds that at that time he was with William, Earl of Ferrers, out of whose household he took a wife, by whom he had a daughter, who was born 3 days before the feast of the Exaltation of Holy Cross now 22 years ago, upon which feast the said Fulk was born at Whitinton, as William Pymor told him at Wanetinge.

The Abbot of Gloucester.

Writ dated 20 March, 9 Edw. I [1281], directed to Ralph de Sandwyco, the King's steward, commanding him to go personally to the wood of the Abbot of St. Peter of Gloucester of Hope Maloysel, which is within the metes of the Forest of Dene, to see whether it would be to the damage of the King, or of the said forest, or of the men of those parts, if the King granted to the said Abbot that he might make trenches there, &c.

Ralph de Sandwyco in propria personâ went to the wood of the Abbot of St. Peter of Gloucester of Hope Maloysel and learnt from the foresters and verderers and other lawful men of those parts, and by his own view, that it would not be to the damage or hurt of the King, or of his Forest of Dene, or of the men of those parts, if the King should grant to the Abbot of Gloucester to cut down that wood in 4 years by quarters and to take his profit thereof, because that wood is old underwood and thick, and less fit for the beasts to feed in than the wood which would grow anew, and that as well wolves, as injurers of the venison, frequently return for the venison and stay in the said wood on account of the thickness thereof, so nevertheless that each quarter shall be enclosed with a low hedge (bassahaye) for 3 years, so that our beasts may go in and out, so that if the cattle of the men of those parts should enter that wood for default of enclosure they shall not be impounded on this account.

The said Jordan, by a writ of the King obtained by the said Abbot, caused an inquiry to be made whether the said mine belonged to the King or not, and by the said inquisition he learnt that it did not belong to the said King, but to the said Abbot and convent of Flaxleye, and then the miners ceased to work there until the coming of Grimbald Pauncefot, keeper of the said forest, who again began to work there with certain of his miners, the said Abbot being unwilling. And he took of the issues in his time for his own

John, son of Ralph Musard.

The sheriff was commanded to cause 12 men to come before the said William and John here at this day to recognize if John, son and heir of Ralph Musard, was born at the Musardere and baptized in the church of the said vill, and by reason of his minority was in the wardship of the King, and whether he is now of full age as he says or not, and to go to the said vill and church and inquire as to the truth of his age, and to cause the custodians of the land of the said heir to come here at this day to hear the said recognition, and to show if anything ought to stand in the way why the said John ought not to have his lands and tenements.

And the sheriff testifies that he caused William de Westinton and Amicia de Popham, custodians of the land of the said heir, to be told to be here on this day, and the said Amicia does not come, but the said William de Westinton comes and says nothing why the said heir should not have his lands, except only that the said John was born in the octaves of St. Hilary next after the siege of the castle of Kemssworth as he understands. John de la Hyde calls to mind the age of the said John by the age of Sybil his daughter, who will be 22 years old in the next feast of St. Peter Advincula, and who was born in the same year as the said John.

John de Frompton says that he went on an errand for Dame Cristian Musard to Ralph Musard, father of the said John, in the vigil of St. Wolstan the Bishop, and the said John was born on the following day, viz., the day of St. Wolstan [19 January], and the mother of the said John often called to mind his age on account of her sufferings at his birth.

Henry Ithenard says that Walter Ithenard, his father, died at the feast of St. John ante Portam Latinam [6 May] 22 years ago, and in the quindene next before the Purification of the Blessed Virgin next following the said J. Musard was born.

Roger de Aldewyk says that he was not in the country when the said John was born, but he learnt by Robert Faber of Smelrugg, who is of the parish of the Musardere, that the said John is of full age and more.

John Waupol.

Inquisition made at Wynth' before the sheriff of Gloucester by Henry de Cotes, Adam Sparuwe, Peter de Coulne, Robert de Aldrinton, Richard le Pestur, Henry Tincter, William atte Hulle, Nicholas Molend' de Twenigg', Robert de Morcote, John de Clyve, Hugh le Dispenser, and Peter de la Fermer, to inquire if it be to the damage of the King or others if the King should grant to John Waupol of Wenlond that he may give one messuage and 2 virgates of land in Throp next Wynth' to the Abbot and Convent of Wynth' and to their successors for ever, who say that

It is not to the damage of the King or others, but rather to the advantage of the King, because at the time of the vacation of the Abbey of Wynth' the King will have the custody of that land, which formerly he had not. The messuage and land are held of the said Abbot of Wynch' and of no other by the service of 2s., so that in all issues beyond the said rent they are estimated to be of the value of 9s. 3d. by the year, and the lands and tenements which remain to the said John suffice to do the customs and services due as well for the aforesaid messuage and lands given as for other tenements retained by him, and for all other charges which they sustained and were wont to sustain, as in suits, to wit, views of frank pledge, aids, tallage, vigils, fines, redemptions, amercements, contributions, and other charges whatsoever issuing to be sustained. Inquisition made before the sheriff at Cornden on Sunday next before the feast of St. Dunstan the Archbishop, 27 Edw. I [1299], by Henry de Brochampton, William Dastyn of Werminton, Richard Dastyn of Grete, Robert de Chaveringworth, Henry de Cotes, Adam Sparwe of Sutleye, William, son of Thomas de Gretton, John de Bracebrugg' of the same, Richard de Pistrino of Wynchecumb, Henry le Teynturer of the same, William de Monte of Sutleye, Walter de Culne of Parva Werminton, to inquire whether it be to the damage of the King or others if the King should grant to the Abbot de la Bruere that he may give and assign 1 messuage, 1 carucate of land, and 10 acres of wood in Cornden to the Abbot and Convent of Wynchecumb and his successors for ever, &c., who say that

It is not to the damage of the King or others if the King grants to the said Abbot de la Bruere that he may give 1 messuage, 1 carucate of land, and 10 acres of wood in Cornden to the Abbot and Convent of Wynchecumb and his successors for ever, but it will be to the advantage of the King, for that when a translation is made from mortmain to mortmain the King will have the custody of the said premises as often as the said Abbey of Wynchecombe shall happen to be vacant, whereas before he did not have it. The said premises are held of Sir John de Suthleye by the service of the yearly rent of 1 pair of boots and 1 monk's girdle with a knife hanging therefrom and one needle with a point (uno agulari cu' acu), from whom the said Abbot de Bruere has full licence to transfer and assign the said premises to the said Abbot and Convent of Wynchecumb, and they are worth per annum, clear, 19s. 4d., because it is heath which is called wood.

William de Derneford holds the manor of Derhurst with the hamlets of Herdewyk, Walton, Cors, Trynleghe, and Hanrugge, and the 4th part of the hundred of Derhurst of the Abbot and Convent of Westminster in fee farm for £34 of yearly rent, and that the said manor with the said hamlets is worth per annum, clear, £36, besides the said farm.

The said William may give the said manor and hamlets and all other the appurtenances in co. Gloucester to the said Abbot and Convent and their successors without damage of the King or others, because whatever accrues to the portion of the Abbot of Westminster will accrue to the King in the time of a vacancy, and so it will to the profit of the King and not to his damage.

It will not be to the damage of the King or others if John le Knyght should give to the Abbot and Convent of Kyngeswode 2 parts of 1 messuage and 1 virgate of land in Colkerton, because they are held of the said Abbot and Convent without mean by the service of 3s. by the year for all service, except in this that that tenement owes suit at the hundred of Langetre twice in the year, which hundred the Abbot of Cirencester holds of the King in chief at fee farm.
